Management consultancy Sia Partners has a unique approach to serving its global client base. It shares practices for good, with a focus on sustainability and a positive impact on society, that it champions within its own organization. The company's collaboration with Amazon Web Services (AWS), says managing director Sebastien Gerber, gives staff access to resources, training, and support. This helps them master new technologies such as generative artificial intelligence (AI), explore new use cases, and find solutions for its clients that make a difference.
