Managing forests in a modern, sustainable way requires accurate, real-time measurement data. Treemetrics brings together this data—from satellites, drones, mobile phones, and various field instruments—to give forest industry professionals a smarter way to monitor tree cover, biomass, and other metrics. The result is environmentally driven decisions and greater sustainability. Operations director Garret Mullooly says the software innovator uses Amazon Web Services (AWS) to develop its cutting-edge technology and revolutionize how forests are managed.
